Key Appointments and Awards for Taylor Walton Partner

Dr Sam De Silva a Technology and Outsourcing partner at Taylor Walton LLP has been appointed to the Law Society's Technology and Law Committee and the Stevenage/btc Enterprise Hub Advisory Board.

The role of the Law Society's Technology and Law Committee is to provide advice on technology and e-commerce related legislation (domestic and European) and to provide support in respect of technology to the Law Society and the profession.

The Stevenage Business & Technology Centre (btc) Enterprise Hub Advisory Board focuses on the quality and scope of the business support available and activities delivered through the btc into the Stevenage and surrounding areas.

Sam's appointments demonstrate his commitment and involvement in the law and IT industry at both a local and national level.

Sam has also recently been awarded Fellowship of the British Computer Society (FBCS) and Chartered IT Professional (CITP) status. These professional qualifications are some of the highest for IT professionals and only a few lawyers have them.

The combination of Sam's appointments and awards from the British Computer Society means that he has a unique understanding of the commercial, business and technical issues facing both users and suppliers of technology. This broader expertise enables him to negotiate more effectively on behalf of his clients, provide appropriate and, where necessary, innovative legal analysis and devise legal and commercial solutions that better meet his clients' needs.
